

“Where can I find examples of user written graph commands for Stata?”

Authored by stats writer

July 1, 2024

RECOMMENDED CITATION

stats writer (2024). “Where can I find examples of user written graph commands for Stata?”. PSYCHOLOGICAL SCALES. Retrieved from <https://scales.arabpsychology.com/?p=164558>

The query "Where can I find examples of user written graph commands for Stata?" refers to the search for sample codes or scripts created by users for creating graphs in Stata, a statistical software package commonly used for data analysis. These examples can be found on various online resources such as forums, blogs, or Stata's official website. These user-written graph commands provide a valuable reference for users to understand and utilize the full potential of Stata's graphing capabilities.

Where can I find examples of user written graph commands for Stata? | Stata FAQ

We have put together several lists of user written graph commands for Stata. Look through the examples and when you find one close to what you want, download the program and carefully read the help file.