

AFFECT-BLOCK

Authored by mohammad looti

November 6, 2025

RECOMMENDED CITATION

mohammad looti (2025). AFFECT-BLOCK. PSYCHOLOGICAL SCALES. Retrieved from <https://scales.arabpsychology.com/?p=66763> noun. A state characterized by the lack of capacity to fully demonstrate or participate in the feeling of emotions, particularly deeper emotions, due to a lapse in connectivity regarding said sentiments from concepts and cognitive processes. Commonly observed in those afflicted with schizophrenic disorders of the mind or OCD

AFFECT-BLOCK: "It isn't uncommon for adults who were neglected or abused as children to experience affect-block."

ARABPSYCHOLOGY.COM